Working With Sex and Violence Offenders: Evidence Based Interventions

Program Summary

In working with Sex and Violence Offender it becomes necessary to have a working definition of "Offender" and then the extension to "Sex Offender" and "Violence Offender". Working with sex and violence offenders requires the use of Cognitive Behavioral and Social and Community Responsibility Therapy (SCRT) approaches for "teaching" these definitions to the offender as it affects themselves, others and the community. The course also takes a look at how to identify, build and strengthen client values in those areas.

The course will also review the role of Motivational Interviewing skills and how its is applied as a method to secure the "assistive and collaborative" relationship that; 1) encourages the individual to participate, and 2) develop a sense of discrepancy between values and behavior and discover intra-personal motivation for change.

Program Goals and Learning Outcomes:

Participants lay the foundation for working effectively with this population. They will learn to;

- Identify "Offender"
- Identify "Sex Offender"
- Identify "Violence Offender"
- Identify Treatment Approaches
- Constancy of Boundaries
- Cognitive Behavioral Approaches
- Motivational Interviewing Skills
